A THIRD POSITION

EDITORIAL

Welcome to Issue 4 of the Kent Crusader. As usual, we have many varied articles exploring a whole range of diverse subjects. Some of those on offer, include: Racial Separatism, Abortion, Our Children's education and local news. We also take a look at Benetton, the fashion chain that plays a large part in the promotion of multi-racism.

Whether or not you agree with the sentiments expressed within these pages, we hope that you will feel like contributing to the content with your own opinions. Our last issue produced some interesting feedback, many people wrote to us to enquire further about Revolutionary Nationalism.

Please read on and see for yourself why the Third Position is fast-becoming a credible force in World politics.

ALLEGIANCE

The Kent Crusader is a political journal dedicated to the preservation of our culture, language and identity. Editorially, we fully support the Kent Third Position.

BENETTON-ENEMY OF ALL RACES

The Third Position understands that victory in Parliamentary elections is the consequence, rather the source, of power in this society. Of all the groups which oppose the ruling System, we alone are free from the delusion that parliament is the true seat of government and that the only course of action open to opponents of the System is to expend huge amounts of money and manpower in contesting elections in the teeth of overwhelming media hostility.

So we are developing alternative, constructive ways of opposing the multi-racial tyranny which has been imposed on our nation. Many actions are possible. They all arise from the fact that, in a plutocracy, power, by definition, is based not on ballots or bullets, but on money. It is true that there are various groups within the ruling coalition with their own ideological or racial reasons for pushing multi-racialism. But the main motivating force is simply that immigration and miscegenation are profitable.

Immigration has always been encouraged in order to provide a pool of cheap, non-unionised labour. And now, with such huge numbers of immigrants and their descendants living here, it is becoming increasingly profitable for firms selling consumer goods to appeal to them in their advertising. But since there are still a fair number of us unfortunate natives left in these islands, the same adverts have to appeal to us as well. Hence the proliferation of multi-racial advertising.

Opposition to this deadly trend is vital. It is also very simple. Since most companies use multi-racial imagery primarily because it has been making the money, all we need to do to stop it is to ensure that it loses them money.

Small protest groups with other interests have shown that such economic pressure works. "Revlon torture rabbits"; "Don't bank with apartheid, don't bank with Barclays"; "This advert degrades women" - the campaigners using these economic tactics all won their battles over the last decade, while the groups which stuck to political targets got nowhere.

Now the Third Position is putting this lesson into action - concentrating all our efforts against the worst capitalist promoter of cultural and national genocide - the Benetton chain of shoddy fashion clothes shops.

Their corporate slogan "The United Colors of Benetton" (note the Yankee spelling, just to add insult to injury) has been promoted for several years now with ever-more repulsive images of race-mixing. Black and white hands, mixed groups of children, blacks and whites kissing. Even the London Underground refused to display their recent offering - a white woman breast feeding a black baby. This sick imagery is an affront to all people - regardless of race - who are proud of their own identity.

It may be that Benetton is so firmly committed to the multi-racial market that our campaign will not make them back down. But in the present economic climate, retailers are particularly vulnerable to such pressure, so even if Benetton do not see sense, other firms will be very reluctant to incur similar public displeasure. So at the very least we can isolate Benetton and stop race-mixing advertising becoming a profitable bandwagon.

The Third Position in Kent is leading the way in this initiative, our Kent Comrades being the first to launch the campaign with their own local leaflet "The Ripped-Off Customers of Benetton". The drive against multi-racial advertising will intensify in the coming months. This will show that there are far better ways to defend the wonderful variety of races and cultures of mankind than wasting money contesting elections to a parliament which is nothing more than a rubber stamp for decisions already made by the Super Rich.

But we need your help as well. Get involved. Boycott Benetton. And do whatever comes to mind to persuade others to do the same. Everyone can do something to fight back Since 1948, when the Palestinian people lost their homeland, hundreds of men, women and children have been killed by Israeli troops. As a creed based on expansionism, the Zionist mentality is not content with controlling Palestine, but wants to physically eject the Palestinians from the length and breadth of their own nation.

As thousands of 'homecoming' Jewish immigrants arrive daily from Russia, the Arab peoples are kept in filthy camps, where running water is a luxury. Troops patrol the streets, exercising curfews to prevent organized resistance to their illegal rule.

Even in such horrible conditions as these the Palestinians have managed to orchestrate opposition and defiance against the Zionist presence. Sadly, acts of bravery are met with gunfire and stone-throwing is met with machine guns. Without the means to organize a more effective campaign against the Zionists, the Palestinians resort to dangerous acts of desperation.

The largest organized group is the P.L.O., although many young Palestinians are turning against Arafat and his supporters, recognizing their proposed 'two-State solution' for the compromising act of treachery that it is.

Since 9th. December 1987, the Palestinians have taken part in an organized uprising against the Israeli State. They refer to this uprising as the 'Intifada', and it has spread throughout whole towns and villages, incorporating the very concept of their determined anti-Zionist struggle.

Sick of being treated like second-class citizens in their own nation, the Palestinians have begun to strike back positively. The Kent Third Position gives it complete support to the Intifada, and will do it's utmost to bring to light the horrific persecution of the Palestinian people by the Zionist bandit-State.

Zionist thuggery in the occupied territories

In previous issues of this quarterly publication, we have examined various past attempts of putting our ideas into practice. Last issue we discussed the Guild of St. Joseph and St. Dominic, and revealed how a number of individuals had tried to initiate their own 'back-to-the land' programme.

On this occasion, our attention comes to focus on the early beginnings of Distributism. In the early part of this century, the renowned author and poet, G.K. Chesterton, regularly published his own paper, 'G.K.'s Weekly', which was the very first exponent of the concept of Distributism.

In Chesterton's own words, he described Distributism as 'a simple idea to restore possession'. This was seen as the only answer to the present system of Capitalism and a clear alternative to the offered mirror-image of atheistical Communism.

In an attempt to create a spiritually-bound doctrine of fair economics, and restore the sanity of field and workshop, of craftsman and peasant, and to leave behind the insanity of machinery, of unemployment, over-production and starvation, the Distributist League was founded.

The League's first aim was to prepare a list of small shops and to encourage their members and supporters to favour these over and above exploitative concerns. Then, on November 27th. 1926, the first formal meeting was held. It was then decided to:

'....enlist the support of the small farmer and the small master craftsman. We hope, little by little, to put the small producer in touch with the small retailer. We hope in the end to establish within the State, a community, almost self-supportive, of men and women pledged to Distributism and to a large extent practising it. Less and less, then, will the juggling of finance have power over us; for it does not matter what they call the counters when you are exchanging hams for handkerchiefs or pigs for pianos'.

Another influential character to join the growing ranks of Distributism, was Hilaire Belloc. Belloc, like Chesterton, was a famous author and poet, and dedicated a book to the subject, entitled 'The Restoration of Property'. This work became the most detailed study of how Distributism could work in practice. Here, Belloc explains why Capitalism and Communism are two sides of the same insidious coin:

'The only economic difference between a herd of subservient Russians and a mob of free Englishmen pouring into a factory of a morning is that the latter are exploited by private profit, the former by the State in communal fashion. The motive of the Russian masters is to establish a comfortable bureaucracy for themselves and their friends out of the proletariat labour. But we want something different from either'. Here is Belloc's alternative:

'There is', he said, 'a third form of society and it is the only one in which sufficiency and security can be combined with freedom and that form is a society in which property is well distributed and so large a proportion of the families in the State severally own and therefore control the means of production as to determine the general tone of society; making it neither Capitalist nor

Communist, but proprietary'.

So ends our short insight into the origins of Distributism. We hope this article has been of interest, we intend to continue this subject in future issues.

THE OTHER ISRAEL

A fact-filled, professionally made video that documents the history of the Jews and shows a totally different face to that generally seen by the public. This video examines many aspects of world history and shows how the Zionists and their predecessors have shaped world events for their own ends, such as the funding and organizing of the Communist Revolution in Russia, their role in spy-rings and "civil rights" organizations in the U.S.A., and the present strife in the Middle East. This is a video that should be seen by as many people as possible.

WESTERN GENOCIDE

In the aftermath of the Gulf conflict, the media has been constantly bombarding our television screens with lies, deceit, hypocrisy and post-war celebratory hype. Whilst millions of innocent Iraqi civilians struggle to repair the damage caused by the Western forces, we are subjected to endless propaganda, that is designed to whip-up support and 'justify' the whole war itself.

The power of the mass media was demonstrated throughout the conflict, as they used misguided 'patriotism' to channel hatred for the Iraqi people and their leader, Saddam Hussein. Many Arabs residing in this country were attacked as a result of this.

It is clear that the powerful Zionist lobby, which controls the affairs of the United States government, has shown no mercy in their determination to destroy Iraq and condemn the Iraqi people to mass genocide, thus bringing security for the illegal State of Israel and making it the most powerful in the Middle-Eastern region.

By dominating the government and controlling the mass media, the Zionists can easily use their power and influence to create situations that benefit their aims and objectives. Saddam Hussein, although not the nicest man in the world, is a fervent anti-Zionist. In other words, he supports the Palestinian people in their struggle to reclaim their land from the Zionist State that now occupies their territory.

To the Zionists, Saddam Hussein was seen as a big threat to their blatant oppression of the Palestinians, and, therefore, had to be dealt with.

In order to turn the world spotlight away from their terror-tactics in Palestine, the Zionist lobby created a situation that would avert attention from their atrocities.

The media's attention has now switched to the plight of the Kurds. This is also very convenient for the Zionists, as the Palestinian situation is once again put onto a back-burner.

In this country, the Zionist influence is not quite as powerful as that in the United States - but it is present. Our own screens are currently dominated by carefully controlled documentaries, detailing the 'persecution' of the Jews throughout history. One wonders if this is yet another attempt to keep the Palestinian issue in the background, this time attempting to create pity for the victims of 'anti-Semitism' and thus try to discredit anti-Zionism as the same thing.

As organized book-burning becomes more widespread, a young mother voices her concern for the welfare of our nation's offspring...

As this country heads down the slippery slope towards American-style degeneracy at such an alarming rate, it comes as no real surprise that the media are constantly pushing the latest idols of junk culture down our children's throats.

It is sad that shallow trends such as the 'Ninja Turtles' or 'He-Man', have come to replace good traditional English characters such as 'Alice in Wonderland' and 'Winnie The Pooh', or magical, entrancing stories such as 'The Chronicles of Narnia'. Television is the main cause of the problem, as it constantly hypes up American drivel by advertising books, comics, films and clothes at peak viewing time for children, knowing full well that when it catches on - all of them want to have the same as their friends. The media are deliberately ignoring all the talented English writers of the past, who can give young minds inspiration and recognition of their culture. It is certainly true that children's books have become far too liberal, to match the society in which we live. In schools and libraries, the reading matter is becoming more and more insidious, filled with race-mixing and homosexuality, but written in such a way which will appeal to children, making it all appear a normal and quite natural way of life. In reality, it is just poisoning their minds, so that they grow up with liberal attitudes.

It is so important that the stories and ideas, written with such enthusiasm by our more morally outstanding authors, are not lost in a barrage of violence and decadence - promoted by today's trendy liberals.

It is up to parents to guide and encourage children to appreciate old favourites like Aesop's Fables, which provide youngsters with the means to establish the difference between good and evil, and right and wrong.

We must unite against those who seek to push filth and degeneracy and infect young minds in such a way, as to have a most devastating effect on the lives of many.

EDUCATING OUR CHILDREN-IS SECURING OUR FUTURE.

GUILE OF MAN

The traitors of Westminster, who take it upon themselves to make all the decisions for the seven different nations of the British Isles, are currently attempting to force the promotion of homosexuality onto the community of the Isle of Man.

Despite strong protests from Christian fundamentalists, Parliament has decreed that the existing legislation that outlaws the promotion of this sickness, must be repealed. The Rev. Noel Jones, one of the island's more liberal elements, even goes as far as to describe the fundamentalists as 'prejudiced'. As far as he is concerned, he welcomes the Government's efforts to 'break down the barriers' and treat homosexuals as a 'normal' part of the Manx community.

At present, buggery is still regarded as an extreme crime on the Isle of Man, and the sentence for such an act is life imprisonment. Maybe some will consider that a bit harsh, but the thing to remember is that the community itself chose that particular method to deal with homosexuals and it is not for a privileged gentleman's club - hundreds of miles away in England - to tell the people how to run their own affairs in their own nation.

As a movement based upon national freedom and social justice, the Third Position recognizes that it is impossible to legislate against homosexuality. We must condemn the sin, and not the sinner. Therefore, the actual promotion of this sickness must be banned, and compassion shown for those who suffer from it. Homosexuality has existed from the beginning of Time itself, but to promote it will result in the destruction of normal family values and a healthy concept of life.

We have one thing to say to Westminster: KEEP HOMOSEXUALITY OUT OF THE ISLE OF MAN...DEATH TO LIBERALISM & IMPERIALISM.

SOWING THE SEEDS OF DISCONTENT

As dozens of homeless people get ready to face another miserable winter, our caring friends on the Tory council seem to be living in another world.

Rather than face this problem and help those who are suffering as a result of being ignored and coming second-place to property developers, the Tories are spending public money on flower boxes.

Now many people may hold the opinion that pretty flower displays in Mount Pleasant Road are far more important than the welfare of our townsfolk, but this does not hide the sheer hypocrisy and crass treachery being practised by a council with no sense of priorities. The evil dross that sit on this committee of greed should be made to suffer the same fate as that which afflicts our poor, helpless street-dwellers. Flowers before people.....whatever next?

Tunbridge Wells seems to be acquiring a new local attraction - the bemused tourist. After spending thousands of pounds on 'improving' the Pantiles area of the town, the council have made a bit of a slip-up. The Pantiles are just not Pantiles any more. For anyone who bothers to investigate the meaning of the word Pantile, one will discover that it is a small, rectangular-shaped object, usually red-coloured. Surely someone should have told the council this fact, as the 'tiles' used to adorn the 'Pantiles' are huge grey - wait for it - paving slabs. No wonder people feel angry after coming all the way to the Wells in order to see this Georgian 'masterpiece'. If you want to see paving slabs, you can go to Croydon.

ONE STEP BEYOND

More council buffoonery has deemed it necessary to renovate the town hall steps. These steps seemed to be in perfect condition, better than many of the town's inhabitants in fact, but maybe the council are expecting a flurry of angry protesters to go stampeding into the council chambers to voice their dissatisfaction at their obvious ineptitude.

Apart from our various community action projects and other political activities, the Kent Third Position has also taken part in many social events during the last few months too. On August 10th., we organized a walk from Tunbridge Wells railway station to Bayham Abbey, near Lamberhurst. This proved very enjoyable, and over twenty activists took part in this event. It was good to get out in to the Kent and Sussex countryside and spend time with other comrades, building a spirit of camaraderie. As one friend from Dover remarked, 'This is what it is all about....what we are fighting for'.

Other activities have taken place all over the British Isles recently, including a walk through Suffolk and a week-long camp/hike through Wales, with comrades from the Welsh Distributist Movement (WDM), who are based in Cardiff.

By increasing our social activities, we are not neglecting our political duties either, as during these walks a whole range of other things can be achieved. In Wales, for example, after setting up a camp and building a fire, activists made a point of getting out into the local community and selling copies of their paper on door-to-door operations. People were greatly inspired by the enthusiasm of some of our younger activists, and by the sight of our Celtic Cross banner - which was proudly carried from town to town.

If you would like to take part in these or other events, then get in touch and join the growing opposition to the misery of city 'living'. A simple stroll along Victoria Road should be enough to convince you that Tunbridge Wells is fast-becoming a concrete metropolis. Help build the National Revolution and instigate a return to the land for our peoples.

In the last issue of this publication, we discussed the dangers of racial integration and the americanization of the British Isles. The final conclusion was that we can learn from the way the United States has become more and more degenerate, and seek to avoid becoming a carbon-copy of a country even further along the Road to Death than our own.

In this article, we attempt to highlight some of the positive things that are being done in America, to counter the ever-quickenening process of racial and cultural suicide. In Milwaukee, an operation has been mounted to try and save young Black males from following the usual route to the local penitentiary - via the cutthroat world of drugs and violence. Two years ago,

Leah Hasty, Principal of Baltimore's all-black Matthew A. Henson Elementary School in a neighbourhood of grassless yards and drug-dealing, created a second - and third - grade class for Black boys, taught by a Black teacher - Richard Boynton.

The youngsters attending the school are making excellent progress and proving that segregated schooling makes an incredible difference to the racial melting pot of most 'schools' and 'colleges' in America. This situation is causing great embarrassment to the authorities, who see this project as a 'reverse of civil rights'.

Roger Green, a Brooklyn, New York State assemblyman, says that 'There has never been a time when we have seen our youth so endangered by anti-social forces, particularly the culture of drugs and violence'. He goes on to explain that since the 'Depths of the Depression', he cannot think of any time that 'Our family structure has been so vulnerable'.

Green should know, too. Poverty, drugs, violence and hopelessness pervade the streets in the Brooklyn community that he represents. Sadly, these awful elements that young Blacks are offered as a 'way of life' are considered better for them than entering the all-Black school.

So-called 'civil rights leader', Jesse Jackson, who wrongly purports to represent the interests of the Black community, has condemned the idea of separate schools for youngsters of different racial backgrounds. In his own words, 'Commitment to equal protection and desegregation should remain'. Obviously this 'champion of civil rights' believes that applying a hated policy of racial integration upon the American people, Black AND White, is more important than the education and well-being of the younger members of the Brooklyn community.

This step has been a very positive move for blacks in America, and we must praise such initiatives and use them as worthy examples of positive self-determination. The Dewsbury 'scandal' has already brought to light the horrendous consequences of mixed schooling, therefore our own communities must be informed of the realities in modern-day England and organize against such measures that undermine our racial and cultural heritage.

SEGREGATE OUR SCHOOLS NOW

IN BALTIMORE: George Adams, 8, gets special attention from teacher Richard Boynton. Their principal explains, "I thought, maybe if I put 20 or so boys with a male role model, I can save some of them."

RESCUE THE CHILDREN

In the second issue of The Kent Crusader we considered the subject of abortion. Having looked at a common form - the suction method, whereby the baby is ripped to pieces and 'hoovered' out of it's mother; we examined the so-called difficult cases of handicap and rape, and touched on how we can do something to stop this actual holocaust.

In this country, there are two places where it is possible to obtain an abortion - in an NHS hospital or a private clinic. As many, many thousands of abortions are carried out by the NHS, why does no-one ever stop to consider the enormous financial costs involved. At a time when so many of our folk are waiting for important operations such as a hip replacement and wards are closing - OUR money is being used to kill pre-born babies. The other face of the abortion industry is even more repugnant as the private clinics not only take the babies' lives, but make a fat profit for doing it.

Surely, now that 3 million innocent lives have been taken in this country alone (the figure is 50 million worldwide EACH YEAR), since the bloodthirsty politicians legalized baby murder in 1967, it is time for action. A group has emerged in recent years which has responded admirably to this call. Operation Rescue, which was founded several years ago in the USA, started up in England two years ago. Members of this group of militant pro-lifers recognize that their struggle is essentially a spiritual one and their movement is fighting for the baby and it's mother. Their activities generally include the picketting of private abortion clinics, leafletting and counselling the mothers before they enter the clinic and explaining exactly what will happen to their baby. If there are sufficient numbers of people present, the entrances to the clinic are blockaded so that it is impossible for anyone - abortionist or mother - to enter. This enables the pavement counsellors to have more time to talk to the mothers, and close down the clinic for the day so no blood-money is made that day.

Inevitably the police arrive and attempt to move the Rescuers to keep the clinic open for the murders to continue. Those blockading the clinic do not fight back as they consider that enough violence is committed in these real death camps. Instead they go totally limp so as to make it more difficult for them to be moved. Very often, extreme violence is used. An example from the USA is not untypical. At a Rescue in Pittsburgh, 125 Rescuers were arrested, beaten with truncheons, kicked and punched. The 65 men were taken to an asylum for the weekend. The 60 women were taken off to prison where they were dragged up five flights of stairs, many by the hair or bra; some were stripped and sexually molested by male guards. At least one woman was kicked between the legs by a female guard. The police removed their ID tags and the prisoners were refused food for their first two days in prison.

One of the leaders of this movement made the following statement - The State is now doing what we always knew it would. We want to stop the tea-party holocaust. You stop killing our brothers and sisters, or start killing us - that has always been the deepest impulse of the Rescue movement.

There are many private clinics in this country, and our own county of Kent, where baby killing is carried out. Find out where your local one is and start a picket with some friends to end this bestial slaughter before we reach 4 million deaths.
